PETITION FOR REHEARING

This case is a Federal Individual Capacity Complaint against Jerry Bowles, Judge regarding violations of federal law which includes the 1st Amendment and the 14th Amendment. This case makes no reference to being an appeal of a decision made by Jerry Bowles from another court.

This Petitioner has NEVER BEEN TO COURT, in the Jefferson County Circuit Court in Louisville, Kentucky regarding her case.

This federal case was filed because the Petitioner filed a case in Jefferson County Circuit Court in Louisville Kentucky, case #01-FC-05084. This case was heard on January 14, 2002 and March 5, 2002, however though the Petitioner filed case #01-FC-05084, only one side was allowed to be in the courtroom to be heard.

Though, the Petitioner was on time and present on each date, the Petitioner and her attorney were denied her United States Constitutional Right to go to court. Therefore, the Petitioner did not have any representation in the Jefferson County Circuit Court in Louisville Kentucky on January 14, 2002 and also did not have any representation in the Jefferson County Circuit Court on March 5, 2002.

Due to violations of her United States Constitutional Rights, the Petitioner filed a Federal Individual Capacity Complaint against Jerry Bowles, Judge regarding Violations of federal law, which includes the 1st Amendment and the 14th Amendment.

The Petitioner has NEVER BEEN TO COURT in the Jefferson County Circuit Court, and therefore asks this court for a rehearing on the merits regarding the Writ of Certiorari filed in this court.

The Petitioner has spent approximately $9,000 "just" trying to exercise her United States Constitutional right to go to Jefferson County Circuit Court to be heard to fight for custody of her grandchildren, AND SHE HAS NEVER BEEN ALLOWED HER RIGHT TO GO TO COURT regarding the case that the Petitioner filed, and court has been held without the presence of the Petitioner or attorney representation for the Petitioner.

The Petitioner was in the Jefferson County Circuit Court building 15 minutes early on January 14, 2002, and was told that they already had court without her presence or attorney representation.

The Petitioner patiently hired another attorney, Frank Campisano, and on March 5, 2002, he and the Petitioner were in the Jefferson County Circuit Court building waiting to go into the courtroom and court was again held without the Petitioner or her attorney's presence.

The Petitioner timely filed for custody, visitation and Case Management Review regarding the abuse her grandchildren were enduring in the hands of the foster parent. This included continuously beating a disabled child, telling the child he is stinking up the house, making him stand in a barn, and making him go without food. The Petitioner's older grandchild was putting food in his pockets to feed the younger child.

The Petitioner states that when she constantly reported the abuse that her grandchildren were enduring, as they were left in this home for nine (9) months after the Petitioner made the first report and additional reports, she was denied the right to see her grandchildren.

Jerry Bowles, Judge then held the Motion for Custody, Visitation and Case Management Review filed by the Petitioner for seven (7) months, and then denied the Petitioner the right to go to court. Thus, the Petitioner has spent approximately $9,000 over the past "2 ½ Years" fighting for her United States Constitutional Right to go to Court.

The Petitioner has heard the pain and pleas of her grandchildren while she stood helplessly locked in a system that was determined to cover up the mistreatment of her grandchildren in a foster home by not allowing the Petitioner her United States Constitutional Right to go to Court.

The Petitioner BEGS this court to rehear this case on its merits, if not for the Petitioner, for the sake of her grandchildren, who do not know what happened to the Petitioner, as she was abruptly cut-off from her grandchildren, while they were in the abusive foster home.

The Petitioner further states that the Respondent did not file a timely response to the original federal complaint, and also states a Default Judgment was filed in this case, along with other federal violations.

In closing, this case is a Federal Individual Capacity Complaint regarding violations of United States Constitution Law, which includes the 1st Amendment and the 14th Amendment and this case is not an appeal of a decision made by Jerry Bowles, Judge from another court.
